FEB 11 at 11am The Legend of Fong Sai Yuk (方世玉, 工)

Jet Li plays Chinese folk hero Fong Sai Yuk. Like Wong Fei-Hong in "Once Upon A Time In China," they were members of the Red Flower Society, an underground organization that tried to return the rule of China to the Chinese from the Ching Dynasty Manchurians. This film won the 1993 Hong Kong film award for best fight choreography. In one scene, they even fight over people's shoulders!

This sequel is about Fong's adventures in the Red Flower Society. It continues the success pairing of Josephine Hsiao & Jet Li -- as a competitive, gender-bending mother/ son team. Chaos follows after the opening of a stolen secret document! Artistic scenes & more camera movement than the first.

FEB 25 at 11am Mr. Boo I: The Private Eyes (半斤八兩)

This film first established the Hui Brothers' comedies internationally. It won high, critical praise & went straight to the top of the box office charts in Japan. The story concerns a small detective agency & the problems it has staying in business & out of trouble; but essentially it is a social comedy & a very penetrating comment of the human condition.

許冠文主演

Mar 4 at 11am The Tai-chi Master (太極張三)

Jet Li, returning to his Shaolin roots in The Tai-Chi Master, journeys back to the Ming Dynasty where he encounters his new leading lady: Michelle Khan. A former Miss Malaysia, Michelle re-established herself as a national star in Super Cop starring opposite Jackie Chan.
